NINGALOO HISTORY

The Northwest Cape was named in 1818 by Captain Philip Parker King, who also named the Exmouth Gulf. The town of Exmouth was named after the Gulf. Ningaloo means Deep Water, an aboriginal word from the West Thalangji people. There's a local history of burial grounds and hunting areas around Ningaloo, with the dreamtime snake Kilijaru having been seen from Vlamingh Head (Lighthouse) during their Dreamtime.

We respect the local history and as visitors to the area, please ensure to respect them too. Parks and Wildlife, who are the governing body, work closely with us to ensure the preservation of the Northwest and Ningaloo Reef for future generations to enjoy. For a complete history on the area, please visit our web page.
